Lilavati Hospital & Research Centre has achieved Joint Commission International (JCI) accreditation

By India Education Diary Bureau March 4, 2026

Mumbai : Lilavati Hospital & Research Centre (LHRC) has achieved the esteemed Joint Commission International (JCI) Gold Seal of Approval®, a globally recognized benchmark for excellence in patient safety, clinical care, and organizational management. The accreditation, assessed by three international surveyors from December 8–12, 2025, places LHRC among the select hospitals worldwide adhering to the highest standards of healthcare.

JCI accreditation validates the hospital's commitment to patient-centered care, clinical excellence, continuous quality improvement, and staff empowerment. The evaluation covered critical areas including access to care, surgical safety, medication management, infection control, governance, facility management, and quality monitoring.

JCI's Gold Seal of Approval is a globally recognized benchmark, representing the most comprehensive evaluation process in the healthcare industry. Achieving this accreditation provides hospitals with a competitive advantage, strengthens recognition from insurers and professional associations, and supports the organization in structuring and enhancing performance improvement efforts. It also helps healthcare institutions evolve into high-reliability organizations, enhances staff education, and provides access to leading experts in quality and patient safety.

Mr. Rajiv Mehta, Permanent Trustee of Lilavati Hospital and Research Centre said, "With JCI accreditation, LHRC continues to set a benchmark for healthcare in India, ensuring the highest standard of care for every patient. With this accreditation LHRC joins a distinguished group that signifies adherence to rigorous international benchmarks and positions these institutions as trusted providers of world-class healthcare."

JCI accreditation is a declaration of a hospital's unwavering dedication to delivering safe, effective, and compassionate care. In an increasingly globalized healthcare landscape, JCI-accredited hospitals stand out as beacons of trust, innovation, and excellence.
